STORM DID BUT LITTLE DAMAGE NEAR THIS CITY

Vicinity of DeKalb Suffered From Many Farm Fires

Friday evening's rain, which brought an end to the extremely hot weather from which people of Dixon, Lee county and vicinity had been suffering more or less for a week, and in which over an inch of rain fell, was accompanied by considerable lightning which struck a number of trees in Dixon and vicinity, but, which as far as was known at noon today, did little unusual damage.

The Dixon Home Telephone Company experienced some trouble on its circuits to the southern and southeastern sections of the city and rural patrons in that direction, due to water getting into one of its big cables serving that territory, and a number of phones were out of commission today as a result.

Information from the Illinois Northern Utilities Co. office was to the effect that the power lines had suffered only ordinary storm damage, and in no communities was the service discontinued.

FIND BODIES IN WRECK IN WHITESIDE

Couple Instantly Killed by Train West of Morrison

Denison, Iowa, Aug. 4—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. George Savery, Chicago, formerly of Denison, Iowa, are believed to be the couple who were killed when a train hit their automobile at a crossing west of Morrison, Ill.

The Saverys who moved to Chicago from Denison about four years ago, were expected here for a visit with relatives and friends.

They are the parents of two children, who, according to reports were not with their parents at the time of the crash.

Both of the supposed victims were born and reared here and their parents reside here. Elsie Baer, owner of the car driven by the Saverys, is a sister of Mrs. Savery.

A man and a woman whose bodies had not been identified at an early hour this afternoon, were instantly killed at 8 o'clock this morning when their Whippet sedan was struck by an east-bound Chicago & North Western Railway work train at the Union Grove crossing west of Morrison in Whiteside county; and the presence of baby clothes and toys in the tangled and splintered wreckage of the machine caused Whiteside county authorities to believe that a child had also lost its life in the tragedy.

Was Iowa Car

The license on the car, 21-5717 Ia., Whiteside county authorities got was issued to Miss Elsie Baer of Denison, Ia., and in telephonic communication with officers there the Whiteside county authorities got their first intimation as to whom the victims may be. Arrival of George Snively of Denison, an uncle of the woman to whom the automobile license had been issued, was being awaited in the hope that he could identify the bodies.

Believes He Knows Them

In his conversation over the telephone Snively indicated that he thought the victims were a sister of Miss Elsie Baer and his brother, who supposed to be on their return trip had taken Elsie to Chicago and were home.

There were no eye witnesses to the tragedy except the engine crew, as far as is known. A statement by the keeper of a general store near the crossing was to the effect that at about the time the work train passed a freight went west, and it is thought the driver of the ill-fated automobile, vision curtailed by the train, started to drive across the tracks after the west-bound train had passed, not noting the other train bearing down on them from the west.

Car Was Wrecked

The officers were called to the locality about 9:30 o'clock when W. Hubbard, blinded by bright lights on an approaching car, went into the ditch. Glass windows in the car were shattered, and the car was hurled into the ditch. The car was found in the ditch with another car sidwiped it, but with little damage to either.

Borrowed Machine Ditched and Louis Reimer of Nashua is Dead

Louis Reimer, aged 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Reimer, prominent farmer of Nashua township, Ogle county, died at 2 o'clock this morning from injuries he received late Friday afternoon when a Dodge sedan, which he had borrowed from an Oregon friend to drive to his parents' home from the county seat, turned over into a ditch on the Lowden road.

Was Going to Dance.

The young man, planning to attend a dance at the Twin City pavilion west of Dixon last evening, had borrowed the car to drive home to obtain a change of clothing. On an incline on the Lowden Road he met an Iowa car, and as both were traveling at a fairly high rate of speed he evidently believed a collision was imminent and turned into the ditch.

The car turned over four times, pinning the unfortunate youth beneath it. He was taken to the Oregon hospital where examination showed he had suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries, from which he died early this morning. Funeral arrangements had not been made at noon today.

Too Much Speed And Not Enough Control Was Costly

Failure of Glenn Ketcham, a Sheridan, Ill., carpenter, to slow down as he was ordered by State Motorcycle Officer Harold Lenox of this city, as the former was enroute to Rock Falls, Friday night, with his wife and two male companions in his Ford coupe, landed the state policeman in a heap in the ditch along side the Lincoln Highway west of the Borden milk factory, and the driver in the county jail, where he is now awaiting efforts on the part of Mrs. Ketcham and his companions to raise $104.90, the amount of fine and costs assessed by Police Magistrate A. E. Simonson.

Officers Lenox and Hal Roberts, also of Dixon, were directing traffic at the point just west of the viaduct near the Slinger oil station, where three automobiles had been involved in a minor accident, when Ketcham approached from the east at a high rate of speed. He failed to slow down as ordered and headed right for Lenox who attempted to avoid being hit by jumping. He failed to get clear from the path of the car and was struck by a fender, being catapulted head-first into the ditch. He sustained painful lacerations on both hands and bruises about the back and shoulders which are causing him considerable discomfort.

NEARLY HALF WAY ACROSS THEN TURNED

Seen North of Azores Flying in Northerly Direction

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

The Polish fliers, Idzikowski and Kubala, having apparently abandoned their attempt to fly across the ocean when almost half way to their goal, were unreported at noon, eastern daylight time today.

Ship reports of their position and direction at 9:40 eastern standard time last night and at midnight indicated that they had turned back and at the beginning of the new day were headed in the general direction of the European coast about 800 miles away.

Fear For Their Safety.

When no report of their arrival back in Europe had been received at noon today some concern began to be felt as it was generally believed the distance to land ought to have been negotiated in nine hours anyway.

It was also felt that the plane might reasonably be expected to have been sighted by at least one of 12 ocean liners whose path it should have crossed on its return trip to Europe.

Were Seen Going North

The ship that reported sighting the plane at midnight said it circled about the ship after approaching from the west and then departed in a northerly direction. As a continued course to the north from where it would cause it to miss Europe altogether most observers felt that this direction must later have been changed to northeast, unless the explanation of the whole matter was that the fliers were completely lost and were wandering the skies in ignorance of their whereabouts. It was felt, however, that if this had been the case, the fliers would have attempted to drop a message to the steamer asking for position and directions.

HEADED BACK HOME?

London, Aug. 4—(AP)—The possibility that the Polish trans-Atlantic plane Marszalek Pilsudski, which started for the United States early yesterday has swung around and is returning to Europe was suggested today by a message received from the British steamer Amakura.

The Valencia wireless station reported receiving the following message from the Amakura:

"5:00 a. m. Greenwich Meridian standard time (12:00 p. m. Friday eastern standard time) 46:20 north 20:40 west, airplane approached from the westward, encircled the ship at a distance of half a mile, height 500 feet and disappeared northward flying very fast. No signal."

Seemed Headed Northeast

At 2:40 a. m. Greenwich time a bi-plane was reported by the Norwegian tank steamer Aztec at 44:22 north and 24:08 west. Thus slightly more than two hours after being sighted by the Amakura, having progressed in a northeasterly direction.

So far as known, there are no airplanes in the region mentioned by the two ships, except the Marszalek Pilsudski.

In the original message sent by the master of the Aztec the phrase "in the direction of 75 degrees" was used. This could be interpreted as indicating that the plane was flying north by dusk.

Had No Wireless.

The Polish plane carried no wireless and message from ships offered the only method of gauging her course and position.

If the message received from the vessels should turn out to have been garbled and the Polish plane is continuing her voyage to the United States, the machine should strike the North American coast some time about dusk.

FOG MAY TURN THEM

Paris, August 4—(AP)—Their lives staked on the performance of a single motor, Majors Louis Idzikowski and Kasimir Kubala, Polish airmen, today were presumably winging their way across the Atlantic hopeful of reaching New York by dusk.

"Nitechevo," said Idzikowski hopping off from LeBourget.

Airmen said that this morning the fliers should be over the steamer lanes and that something was likely

YOUNG GIRL SHOT AND LEFT TO THE MERCY OF BEASTS

Grewsome Tragedy is Uncovered in Hills Near Hollywood

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 4—(AP)—Details of a love drama which ended in a gruesome tragedy in the hills above Hollywood were being gathered from both sides of the continent today by police in an effort to solve the murder of Barbara Mauger, 19-year-old Philadelphia girl.

Her former lover, Russell St. Clair Beitzel, once a man of affairs in Philadelphia, stand formally charged with the crime. He has lately been employed by a service organization here.

Eaten By Wild Animals

The nude body of the girl, which bore only a platinum wedding ring as a means of identification, was found in a remote spot yesterday. She had been dead more than a month. The body had been badly torn by wild animals.

The ring, a shield beehind which the love affair between Beitzel and the girl had been concealed, was the clue that led police to his door.

Wound Was Not Fatal

The gruesome touch was added to the slaying when the county autopsy surgeon found that the bullet wound in the head of the young woman would not necessarily have been fatal had she been given immediate medical treatment.

The surgeon said it was possible that the bullet merely blinded and stunned her and that she might have lived as long as three days, finally dying slowly and in agony.

Left Family For Her

Under vigorous questioning, Beitzel told the police he had separated from his wife and his two small sons when he met Miss Mauger—whose name he first gave as Barbara Morrow—a waitress in a Philadelphia cafe. He became infatuated with her. He confessed that he stole $300 from the safe of the Philadelphia dry goods store of which he was credit manager and the pair came to Hollywood where they lived together.

Girl Wanted Marriage

Then Miss Mauger found she was to become a mother and quarrels followed, the girl asking that he obtain a divorce and marry her. On June 24, he said, while in his automobile in the hills above Hollywood, just a few hundred yards from the spot where the body was found, they had another quarrel and she leaped from the car and disappeared. That was the last time he had seen her, he declared. The day before he had borrowed a gun and gone to the same spot to practice shooting, he said.

Said Wife Had Left

Neighbors told the officers he returned from that June 24 ride and said his "wife" had gone and would not return. In storage, the police found a complete layette of baby clothes.

Dispatches from Lancaster, Pa., where Beitzel's wife, Mrs. Jean Melinger Beitzel, lives with their two children, told a different story from that of her husband.

She said the slain girl was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mauger of Philadelphia and that it was the affair between Beitzel and the girl which caused her to leave her husband.

Beitzel, according to the officers who questioned him, maintained an attitude of cool indifference. Standing at the spot where the body of the girl was found, he grinned broadly as he answered some of their questions.

Junior Leaguers Have Real Scandal

Chicago, Aug. 4—(AP)—The American Legion junior state baseball tournament had a scandal of its own today. After an all night session of the State Athletic Committee of the American Legion, it was announced this morning that three teams participating in the tournament, two of whom were to contend for first place in the state finals at the Cubs park today, had been eliminated from the competition after an investigation of reports that some of the players were over the age limit for junior baseball.

The Elmhurst, Ill., team, the West End Cardinals of Chicago and the American Boys Community team of Chicago were the ones eliminated. As a result the game today between Elmhurst and Springfield was called off as was the game between the winner of this contest and the West End Cardinals.

As a result of the ruling Peoria and Springfield were scheduled to play the morning game with the winner meeting the Marine Post of the American Legion Juniors in the afternoon.

MEN LEAVING WORK HIT BY FAST TRAIN

Trumble Brothers and Clifford Palmer were the Victims

Arthur Trumble, Earl Trumble, brothers, and Clifford Palmer, all brick masons employed by the Schafer & Olson contracting firm, met death about 4:40 yesterday afternoon when south bound Illinois Central passenger train struck the Chevrolet sedan when Arthur was driving, at the crossing in the Dixon state hospital grounds. The three men with several others were employed in the construction of the new dairy barn at the institution and were leaving their work for home.

Witnesses state that Arthur Trumble, who was driving, appeared to become excited when he observed the train bearing down upon him and almost stopped his car directly in the pathway of the train. Earl Trumble was killed instantly and Clifford Palmer died a few minutes later, having never regained consciousness. Arthur Trumble died about 8 o'clock last evening at the Dixon public hospital.

Many Witnessed Tragedy

The crash was heard by probably a hundred workmen and institution patients who were near the scene, many of whom were eye witnesses to the accident.

A number of cars containing workmen had passed over the crossing, the ill fated car being the last to cross. John Corrigan and Henry Miller, patients at the institution, saw the passenger train bearing down upon the car before it started to cross the track and shouted to the driver, but their cries apparently were unheard.

Nearly Wrecked Train

The pilot of the locomotive struck the rear of the automobile, damaging the front of the engine and only by a miracle, did the train remain on the rails and thus prevented its being rolled into a deep ditch. A portion of the pilot was torn away and one of the steam chests damaged. The automobile was shoved ahead of the train a distance of about 25 feet, being hurled around against the drive wheels and turned over. The bodies of Earl Trumble and Clifford Palmer were thrown a distance of more than 60 feet from the crossing and were badly mangled. Arthur Trumble was rolled under the wrecked car a distance of about 20 feet. He was rushed to the hospital and upon first examination, it was not thought that his injuries were of a serious nature. His condition grew rapidly worse, however, and about 8 o'clock he passed away.

Believing Inquest Today

The bodies of the two men who were killed almost instantly in the crash were removed to the Staples mortuary where Coroner Frank M. Banker is conducting an inquest today. The body of Arthur Trumble was taken to the Preston mortuary where an inquest will also be held. The time for the inquest was set at 1:30 to permit the members of the train crew to reach the city to testify. Several witnesses including fellow employees of the three men and employees and patients from the Dixon state hospital were also called to give their versions of the fateful accident.

Arthur Trumble and his family reside at 320 Spruce street and his brother Earl, and Clifford Palmer were boarding with him. The latter two men had come to Dixon to follow their trade as brick masons on the

The WOMAN'S DAY-ly ALLENE SUMNER

Doubtless Commander Fitzhugh Green thought himself liberal when he delivered himself of the opinion that a woman could fly on long trips with men pilots and still be a conventional woman. "A year ago," continued he, "women could not take part in such an enterprise and win public approval. This wisecrack takes us way back to the day when women first began sitting on juries and somebody began yowling that 'all good women should be insulted at being called for jury service and forced to mingle with strange men.'"

Somehow some men just can't get used to the idea that women now live as people instead of as just women! And that their universe today is infinitely more than just a man-woman relationship universe!

MORE BABBLE
The commander continues to say, too, that Amelia "disproves the theory that women are not able to stand long flights. Miss Amelia weighs only 120 pounds. But she has shown us that women ought not to be called the weaker sex because they can show as much physical endurance as men aviators." Miss Amelia proves nothing of the kind, no more than one individual experience ever proves anything. She proves that she herself had vitality and physical endurance. But she no more proves that "women" have that than Lindbergh proved that "men" have everything he had.

OLD HOME TOWN
Speaking of Amelia, one seriously wonders, as one always wonders when the old "home folks" make a great to-do about some celebrity, how many of the Medford, Mass., and Chicago people who called her "Our Amie" and "knew her when," and as they declare now, "always did know that she'd be famous some day," really did any such thing? It seems so almost invariably true that "a prophet is without honor in his own country," and that if there's one thing the bulk of humanity loves it's rubbing elbows with the great and deriving some virtue from the pretense that the great and he or she were always very chummy.

I liked a story which came out of West Branch, Iowa, Hoover's old home town, to the effect that even the oldest inhabitants confessed that they could barely remember the boy Hoover who lived there. That rang so true. Human nature is like that, and the pose it so often wears is just a pose.

THE DUCK—1
Very often you can make the most of a suit by deliberately losing the first trick. This method of play, called "ducking" is founded not only on the law of average probabilities but also on the expectation that the cards are normally distributed. Unless the bidding has furnished information to the contrary, play the hand on the assumption that the cards of a suit out against you are evenly divided between your opponents or nearly so.

As a concrete example of ducking in actual play, examine the following explanation in which the declaration is two no trumps.

DUMMY—holding spades J 3, hearts 4 3; diamonds A K 7 6 5 4; clubs 8 5 2. East—holding nothing of importance.

DECLARER—holding spades A 10 5 2; hearts A 10 9 5; diamonds 8 3; clubs A J 4.

West leads clubs 7 and declarer takes with the Jack. To make game, declarer needs eight more tricks. He has three sure tricks, Aces, in his hand. He may win five tricks in diamonds by leading diamonds 3, and playing diamonds 4 from the dummy!

The probabilities are that the five diamonds missing are divided three and two. By playing diamonds A on the next round of that suit and following with diamonds K all of the missing diamonds will fall, enabling the declarer to make the three remaining diamonds in the dummy good and giving him a total of five tricks in that suit. Lacking a re-entry to the dummy in any other suit, declarer would fail to make more than six tricks out of both hands if he did not duck on the first round of diamonds. This maneuver gives him his only chance of making game.

REV. DORNBLASER AND SON TO TAKE KANSAS TRIP—

The Rev. T. F. Dornblaser, father of Dr. T. F. Dornblaser, went to Amboy from Dixon recently to spend a few weeks at his son's home.

Reverend Dornblaser and the doctor expect to leave for Topeka, Kas., Monday where the Dornblasers once lived. They will also drive on to Ellsworth, where Dr. Dornblaser was born.

Reverend Dornblaser enjoyed a profitable two weeks at the Assembly grounds attending the Bible conference and the chautauqua. His health and vitality appear as sound as at any time in recent years. The past two years he has spent in Germany and he is very closely acquainted with political, economic and social conditions in that country today.

Were Guests Recently Rainier Nat'l Park
Miss Isadora Chase and Miss Ruby Evelyn Chase of Sterling, were guests recently at Paradise Inn, high up on 14,408-foot Mount Rainier, the tallest perpetually snow-capped peak in the United States, in Rainier National Park, Washington. During their stay at the famous mountain inn in Paradise Valley, 5,557 feet above sea-level, they found the hillsides under a fragrant, multi-colored blanket of flowers that stretched for miles as far as the eye could see.

The annual picnic of the druggists of Lee, Ogle and Whiteside counties and members of their families, held Thursday afternoon in Lowell Park was the most successful and well attended of the association's yearly outings, there being 170 registered. The whole afternoon and evening were replete with interest, the sports, for which prizes valued at over $400 had been donated by wholesale druggists, furnishing much amusement. There were so many prizes that everyone in attendance received a gift of some kind, the most valuable of which were a crystal water set given by Fuller & Morrison and a fine double fountain pen desk set, the donation of the Waterman Co.

Several visitors were present from Clinton, Ia., including Mr. and Mrs. Olin Hill and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. Henning and Peter Mardsen of the Arzen Mfg. Co.

John Salzman had charge of the fine dinner which was served in the evening and Fulfs Brothers dispensed ice cream and drinks during the afternoon.

Kings' Daughters S. S. Class Picnic

Wednesday, the King's Daughters Sunday School class of the Grace Evangelical church held a picnic dinner and meeting at the home of Mrs. May Sennett. There were twenty-two members present and about ten visitors, making thirty-two in all.

A delicious picnic dinner was spread on tables under the shade of the sheltering trees on the beautiful lawn, everyone heartily enjoying the repast. The lawn and shade trees at this home are particularly worthy of mention.

In the afternoon a short business session was held and during this period two members were admitted to class membership.

In the afternoon with the lengthening shadows, the happy company departed for their homes, with day at the Sennett home.

Good Home Sought For Lovable Child

Through publicity in the Dixon Telegraph, a number of children from the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society, Peoria, Ill., have been placed in good homes in Dixon and in other towns, also.

Mrs. Robert Wallis, visitor from the home which is located at 511 Central National Bank Building, Peoria, Ill., now has in charge an exceptionally nice child, a girl of thirteen years, whom she desires to place in a good home. The little girl has been in the home of a minister's family for several years but because of financial circumstances, the family is forced to ask assistance for the little girl, as they have several children of their own. This child likes music, likes to read, and is well behaved, and is willing to work. It seems as though life should have something to offer the little one in the future, who although born of parents of good birth, has always been the victim of unfortunate circumstances. To learn particulars about this child write Mrs. Robert Wallis, 511 Central National Bank Bldg., Peoria, Ill., Visitor of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid.

The minister in whose family the child has been for the past six years says he would almost rather part with one of his own children than this little girl, who since she has been informed that she must leave his home has lost flesh noticeably. She has been excellently trained and is a lovable child.

D. B. Martin Family In Pleasant Reunion

The family of D. B. Martin of Dixon held a reunion at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Gay-man, about two miles northwest of Polo, Sunday. Twenty-five gathered on their large front lawn to enjoy a picnic dinner at noon. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Martin and Mrs. Milton Gayman and children, Mrs. J. H. Gayman, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gilbert and family of Woonung and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Martin and family of Dixon.

The occasion of the gathering was to welcome their cousins, Miss Ruth Carbaugh and E. B. Carbaugh and family of Cleveland, Ohio. The Carbaughs stopped off here on their return from an extended tour of the Pacific coast and southern Canada. They visited all the principal places along the coast from Mexico to Alaska, spending some time in Alaska.

They returned over the Canadian Rockies and went up through the plains of Alberta and Saskatchewan. A large wheat crop is expected unless a hail storm or an attack of rust interferes.

Birthday Was Happily Observed

Mrs. J. W. Watts and Mrs. Clea Bunnell entertained the members of the Thursday Reading Circle Tuesday evening at their home, with a birthday party in honor of Mrs. Lydia Parks, who is very popular with many friends.

The evening was spent in music and readings and social chat, after which the hostesses served delicious refreshments.

Mrs. Parks was remembered with many birthday gifts, one of them being a huge birthday cake covered with candles. With the gifts were many good wishes for happy returns of the day.

REVENGE ON TRUCK DRIVERS.

A New Jersey aviator had it in for truck drivers who delivered supplies at his airport. Their trucks, lumbering through mud holes, splashed him with mud and water, soiling his clothes and splattering his airplane. He determined to get even.

So one day he went aloft and waited until he saw a string of trucks approaching the airport. Then he swooped down and dove for the trucks. The drivers saw him descending on them and leaped, helter skelter, for safety, ditching their cars. Then he sailed away, laughing, and they swore and perspired getting their trucks out of the ditch.

The flyer was arrested, which probably was fitting and proper. No aviator has any business frightening people that way. It's akin to rocking the boat.

But he has a certain sneaking sympathy of ours. We, too, have been splashed by trucks, the drivers of which only laughed callously. We hate to see anybody break the law, but we can't be really sincere in condemning this man.

RASKOB'S RETIREMENT.

John J. Raskob's temporary retirement from General Motors was a wise act, taken in the public interest.

Of course, anyone who stopped to think must have known that his selection as Governor Smith's campaign manager did not involve General Motors as a corporation in any way. But many thoughtless people doubtless were wondering if there were not "something back of it"; if he had retained his old connections, it probably would have been whispered that General Motors' vast organization was applying pressure all the way down the line to swing votes for Smith.

That, of course, would have been an obvious absurdity. But some people would have believed it. Raskob's resignation clears the air and makes it plain to the dullest citizen that General Motors is an industrial, not a political, organization.

BLUSTER FROM ITALY.

Mussolini, incensed at the unkind things that are being said about Nobile and other members of his party, declares that the Italian government will investigate the whole thing and insists that the world reserve judgment until all the facts are presented.

Obviously, it is unjust to form opinion on scanty knowledge. But Mussolini has only himself and his compatriots to blame if this has been done.

Ever since the Italia crashed the Italians have been highly secretive. They have allowed widely different versions of every incident to creep out. Their attitude has not only encouraged the spreading of rumors; it has given the impression, rightly or wrongly, that there was something they were trying to suppress.

Mussolini demands that the world reserve judgment until it gets the facts. The world has a right to demand of Mussolini—with equal bluster, one might add—that the Italian government resort to complete frankness.

New York's health commissioner, discussing the effects of alcohol, says he has "heard some excellent speeches" by speakers who were far gone in liquor. Can it be that he visited Kansas City or Houston last June?

Chicago's new chief of police announces he will enforce all laws rigidly. Let's see; wasn't the last chief there going to run all crooks out of town in 60 days?

Rocky River, Ohio, woman ruled she would drive family car hereafter, when court allowed her to pass judgment on husband, pinched for intoxication. The back-seat driver moves up front.

City folk usually have this experience with raising baby chicks: fifty per cent die; fifty per cent turn out to be roosters, and the rest are hens.

Senator Tom Walsh, fishing in a Montana stream, got two fish on the same line the other day. When he put them in his net, it is said, both of them claimed the transaction was just a loan from one old prospector to another.

A man was bitten by a bear at a filling station in Marlboro, Mass. The bear went up to get his fill.

"Twas really quite a funny sight to see each little Tynmite aching to the wooden man, and floating down the stream. One Tyn kept away from harm by clinging to a wooden arm. And Clowzy, clinging to his leg, said, 'If I slip, I'll scream.'"

"Oh, there will be no cause to weep. This water isn't very deep," exclaimed the friendly wooden man. Why don't you swim a while? Just try to swim to yonder shore, and if you can't grab hold some more. It isn't very far from here. I'd say about a mile."

"No thank you," said one Tynmite. "We're satisfied to hang on tight. But, say, you're floating down the stream. We might drift out to sea. A trip like that might turn our ground, but I'd prefer to reach the land. I'll help you paddle shoreward if the rest will all help me."

The whole bunch worked with all their force and very shortly changed their course. "We're heading for the sandy beach," cried Clowzy in delight. Let's hurry now. We're moving slow. Let's see just how fast we can go." And thus it wasn't long until they landed there all right.

They helped the wooden man ashore. Said he, "We're safe and sound once more. Why don't you build a little fire. Some wood I'll gladly get. That is a good plan, goodness knows, 'cause it will help dry your clothes. Just look at all you Tynmites. Why you are soaking wet."

They built a fire as best they could. The Tyns ran out for more wood. 'Twas then the clumsy wooden man fell right across the blaze. The next thing that the Tyns knew, they heard him cry "I'll burn in two. Please help me from this bonfire. I fell in while in a daze."

(The Tynmites repair the wooden man in the next story.)

BUTTER IS WHOLESOME FOOD
Cow's butter contains more of the fat soluble "A" vitamin than any other food in comparison to the amount used. This makes butter a very valuable food for children, and they should be encouraged to use a reasonable amount.

Since the earliest primitive times, butter has been the source of one of man's best forms of nutrition. The milk of cows, mares, and, in fact, the milk of every domesticated animal has been used, and is still being used in many parts of the world, but because of economy of production, cow's milk is now the principal source of butter fat in practically every civilized country.

It is advisable to use a certain amount of hydrocarbons or fats each day, both for their nutritive and lubricating qualities.

Our best butter at present comes from the large and well organized creameries, since there it can be scientifically prepared so as to avoid all possibilities of uncleanness. By this process, the cream is separated from the whole milk while it is still sweet by running it through a centrifugal separator. It is then pasteurized and treated by the addition of lactic acid culture before being churned. In this way there is no danger of contamination from outside sources, and it is a well known fact that creamery butter will keep longer without becoming rancid than farm butter.

The old fashioned method was to allow the milk to stand for two or three days and then churn the sour cream, which formed at the top of the vessel.

Butter made from sweet cream is not as popular as a table article in this country as it is in Europe, and while it is relished by many, it is no more desirable from a standpoint of health than properly made creamery butter, to which a small amount of salt is added. Sweet butter, nevertheless, has a ready sale since it is used, especially in the larger cities, to re-construct cream and milk for restaurants and ice cream factories. Used in this manner, it is just as wholesome as the fresh cream, and has the advantage of being kept for a long time without spoiling.

The best butter contains only about 11 percent moisture, and will keep for a long time without spoiling. When much milk is present the butter tends to spoil. The rancidity is caused by the formation of butyric acid. By washing rancid butter in fresh milk, some of this butyric acid is absorbed, after which the milk may be washed out with fresh water.

Many families use oleomargarin. There are some wholesome butter substitutes called nut margarin being placed on the market at the present time, which are an advantage in families where the income is small and the butter bill is often a considerable item. Most of these butter substitutes are made from peanut and coconut oil, combined with milk and heavily flavored with salt. They usually contain a small amount of benzoate of soda, which is a preservative to keep the milk from souring.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—A. R. asks: "What causes little red spots, like little specks of blood, to appear under the skin? There are a few on my face and all over my body."

ANSWER—Your blood capillaries are breaking down because they do not contain enough calcium or other mineral matter. This may be due to your not eating foods containing these minerals, or simply because they are destroyed after eating by an acidosis in your system produced by a diet that is improperly balanced, from the standpoint of physiological chemistry.

QUESTION—E. L. writes: "Will you kindly print a diet which should be followed by a person sixty years old, of apoplectic build, who is getting rapidly stout. We know that starchy foods are fattening, yet what articles of food are there that will give a varied diet and keep up one's strength?"

ANSWER—It would be all right for you to follow the weekly menus which appears in this column each Saturday. The only change you need to make is to substitute some one kind of fruit for the meals which contain starches. If you have high blood pressure, it will slowly reduce under this non-starchy diet. You will see that there are plenty of foods other than starches which you can use and which will "keep up your strength" and, at the same time, not be fattening.

QUESTION—F. G. writes: "I have severe attacks of heartburn after meals. I would like to know what causes this and how to get rid of it."

ANSWER—Heart burn simply means over-acidity of the gastric juice, and is caused by bad combinations of foods, wrong kinds of foods, condiments, too much liquid at meals, etc. A teaspoonful of baking soda taken just after the meal will relieve the heart burn, but a real cure can only be obtained through removing whatever cause is producing the trouble.

GLAD HANDS—A SMILING SKIN

Softened Water saves their Beauty

Lovely hands, soft and smooth. A complexion clear as dew. Hair that glistens with life.

These are the heritage of every woman... precious gifts to preserve.

Shall you, feminine reader, rely utterly on soaps, restorative cosmetics and lotions? Or shall you realize the fundamental principle in care of the skin—complete cleansing first.

Softened water cleans thoroughly, yet gently. Hard water cannot. The minerals that make water hard cause the formation of soap curds instead of foamy lather. These curds do not clean the pores of the skin; rather they clog them and seal dirt and impurities in.

Softened water, on the other hand, with less soap produces a rich, abundant lather that is easily rinsed away, carrying imbedded dirt with it.

HOW TO HAVE IT

Softened water for household tasks protects hands that must work in water. Hard water, which requires more strong soap, roughens and reddens the skin.

Perfectly softened water in abundance is easy to have the Duro way.

A Duro Water Softener is easily connected to city water pipes. Simply filtering through, city water is made softer than cistern water, and is always ready at every faucet.

$25 DOWN

There are three types of Duro Softeners—Automatic, Semi-Automatic and Hand-Operated—each guaranteed—ranging in price so that any home can afford one type or another. A liberal Duro Purchase Plan provides a first payment as low as $25, and you can begin at once to enjoy softened water. Let us tell you the whole story.

YOUR PROTECTION—Duro Water Softeners are licensed under Patents Nos. 1,195,928; 1,348,977; 1,456,443; 1,862,673, and a re-issue No. 16,497, owned by The Pennsalt Co. of N. Y. Further protected by Duro Patents Nos. 1,634,409; 1,644,714; 1,646,581; 1,622,195; 1,608,091; 1,622,899; 1,625,197, and other Patents pending.

JAMES FOSTER, CONFEDERATE ANSWERS TAPS

Famous Rebel Soldier Devoted Life to "The Lost Cause"

Houston, Texas, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Death has claimed another of the colorful figures of the thinning ranks of gray in the passing of James Calvin Foster, commander in chief of the United Confederate Veterans in 1927. His widow was besieged today with messages of condolence.

The veteran, active almost until the hour of his death in the interest of veterans of "the lost cause" died here yesterday at the age of 81. Responses to his letter appealing for funds to finance the convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy cheered him on his death bed.

General James Calvin Foster, once commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, gave most of his life labor to put Confederate history in the right light before the world, to "purify it" as he expressed it.

He was 13 years old when the Civil War began, but he was 16 before the authorities would allow him to enlist and they were doubtful even then that the child-soldier could carry a musket, a cartridge box, and two regulation army blankets.

Foster enlisted at Spartanburg, South Carolina, July 10, 1864, in Company A First South Carolina Battalion, which was afterwards consolidated with the Third South Carolina Regiment.

While the Federal General, William Tecumseh Sherman, was marching from Atlanta to the sea, Foster's unit was assigned to protect the railroad from Savannah to Charleston, the only supply outlet for General Robert E. Lee's army. The Federal batteries continually bombarded the Confederate line, and when Sherman captured Columbia, the command fell back to Charleston. This, perhaps, was the outstanding engagement in which Foster participated.

Foster returned to his home a month after the war ended. He became secretary of the Democratic club at the age of 20. Those were "carpet-bagger days." The South needed votes and Foster later said with a chuckle, "I began to vote early."

Foster first engaged in business in Birmingham, now known as Glendale, South Carolina. He drifted to Arkansas and at West Point, October 1, 1873, he married Miss Annie Buchanan Foster, a cousin several times removed.

General Foster went to Texas in 1885. For 14 years he was commander of the Dick Bowling Camp, United Confederate Veterans at Houston, and at the Tampa, Fla., reunion of the veterans in April, 1927, he was elected commander-in-chief.

He was born in Rich Hill, now known as Whitestone, Spartanburg county, South Carolina, July 24, 1847.

ROCHELLE NEWS

Rochelle—E. F. Sullivan has a good field of progress wheat, a new variety for this vicinity which is being tried in a small way by a few farmers of this community, very free from rust. The grain appeared to be of very good quality and only slightly damaged by blight. The new variety is showing up better this year than any other variety according to some observers. Tests at the DeKalb experiment field and by a number of farmers around DeKalb have shown it to be nearly rust proof.

Oderbrucker barley is showing up much better this year than the velvet variety according to Frank Zimmerman, high school agriculture instructor. Doyon-Rayne Company have thus far shipped their eighth car of barley since the threshing season opened. Four of these cars have been delivered by T. G. Southworth and the other four were delivered by the Mid-West Canning Co. The Mid-West Canning Company is using a Holt combine in combination with a header. Moisture tests on this barley showed no moisture over 13.8 per cent with an average of about 12 per cent.

Floyd Countyman, of Lynville township, sold 80 acres of good barley last week. Practically every field of barley is more or less damaged by blight. Lester Leonard is well pleased with the use of the combine. Clarence Henderson is doing a very good job of cleaning on Leonard's grain.

Frank Casey, who resides north of Creston, who suffered a sixteen foot fall from a hay loft a few weeks ago and was badly injured, has entered the Lincoln Hospital here for examination and treatment.

Ralph Cleveland, local McCormick implement dealer, has sold over 17 tons of binder twine he announced Monday. To be exact 34,400 pounds of "Big Ball" which at an average price of 12 cents per pound cost the farmers of this community $4,128.00.

Considerable interest is being shown in the raising of alfalfa, not only for a fine feed, but because it can be sown on ground infested with Canada thistles and the frequent cutting and hardy roots and foliage have been proven to choke out and kill the thistle pest. Howard Cooper of the Rochelle Seed Co. states that several experiments have proven the value of alfalfa used for this extermination. Much alfalfa is being grown and sown in this section this season.

Attorney S. V. Wirick was the winner in the 15th judicial district handicap golf tournament at the Edgewood Country Club, Thursday. Twenty-five judges and attorneys of the district were contestants and a six o'clock dinner was served after the game. Attorney C. W. ## HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO HAVE IT 459 BELOW?

The Professor Picked Out A Good Day to Talk About It

Evansville, Ill., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Don't let the thermometer trick you when it is flirting around 90 degrees. That is the advice of Prof. B. S. Hopkins of the University of Illinois, who today explained before the American Chemical Society Institute at Northwestern University the attempt of science to get to 459 degrees below zero.

The substance used is called "calcium sulfate"—one of the rare earth elements.

"With it," Prof. Hopkins said, "Science hopes to get to the real bottom of the temperature scale—so-called 'absolute zero.'"

At this point, it was explained, molecules of matter cease to move. Everything stands still. Man couldn't exist in anything near such temperature. But there is something cooling in the thought of getting below the bottom of the thermometer.

Prof. Hopkins, who is one of the world's authorities on the subject of elements, is the discoverer of illium, the last of the rare earths to be discovered. It is the only one of the 90 elements which has been discovered by an American.

With Dixon Boys in Militia Camp

Camp Grant, Rockford, Aug. 3.—"Sparky" Miller, the red-headed flash, was the victim of an enraged fellow guardsman's attack Thursday and as the result is carrying a beautifully blackened left eye. The titian-haired marvel is cheerful, however, and is keeping the place he was so brutally 'brut' into.

John Burke, the stork-legged rookie, was caught today by a mess sergeant, stealing seconds. That's a very serious offense but since the grub was plentiful, he was only made to cut weeds with his table knife.

Tonight the planes are out and the anti-aircraft battery is trying to pick them up with their powerful search lights. When the light strikes a plane it is a beautiful sight. The plane looks like it were silver plated and when the sky is very black the effect is especially striking. Immediately upon being spotted the ships go into a tail spin and are out of sight in a few seconds.

Illinois Briefs

Port Byron—(AP)—Port Byron, a village of 50 persons which escaped being a city through the small matter of the location of a bridge, will celebrate its centennial anniversary August 17-19.

By virtue of the same bridge, spanning the Mississippi eight miles from here, three cities have grown—Moline, Rock Island and Davenport. Rich in natural resources, the settlement of Port Byron had every reason to look forward to the day when the community would become the metropolis of the area, but the decision of the government in selecting the Rock Island area for the site of the bridge, permanently crushed these hopes.

Today the village, with no dreams of future greatness, now claims to be only as thriving a small town as could be found anywhere. It is a retreat for Tri-city residents, and completion of hard roads may give it the status of suburb. At one time, a population of 1,500 was reached, but two disastrous fires and the panic of 1837 checked this growth.

One hundred years ago, the first settlement was made on the site of Port Byron by Robert and Thomas Syms, attracted to the location from Sangamon county by the rich woodlands. They established a woodyard, supplying the steamboats which plied the Mississippi. Other settlers followed. The same year came Archibald Allen from New York, selecting the site because of its natural beauty. He built a cabin, the first frame house between Quincy and Galena. In that early day, the nearest jail was at Galena, eighty-five miles away.

Port Byron is rich in the best grade of lime rock found in the United States, and this industry is the nucleus of commercial activity in the village. Forests which once covered the county have given way, and in their stead are rich farm lands.

The centennial celebration activities are to be held in Dorrance Park, said to be one of the most attractive in the state. Sports, pageants and picnics are planned for the three-day observance.

Herrin—(AP)—Hoping to "come to the rescue" of the small town country newspaper publisher when he is in need of legal advice, Hal W. Trevillion, Herrin publisher, has completed a compilation of Illinois laws pertaining to the newspaper and printing business.

"This book is prepared," he said in a foreword, "as a ready guide to what the law says in the many relations that a printer or publisher may have with legal publications."

"There is no habit more prevalent than the attempt on the part of some people to evade their legal duties by skimping and going around the country newspapers. If the law provides that a legal notice shall be published three times in succession, often the attempt is to make a single publication suffice. If an obstinate official is required to advertise in two newspapers he invariably tries to half comply with the law if one of the papers happens to be unfriendly to him."

Urbana—(AP)—Chinese by telegraph, long regarded as an impossibility, has been made practical through the researches of Dr. C. C. Wang, former University of Illinois student.

Out of the maze of characters making up the Chinese language, a commission headed by Dr. Wang has evolved a system of phonetics which for the first time will enable Chinese to send messages over telegraph wires in their own tongue. Dr. Wang has written President David Kinley of the university. The system will place China on a parity with other nations in telegraphic communication. It was devised after fifteen years of labor, Dr. Wang wrote.

Although introduced into China in 1871, the telegraph has been hampered in its development because of the impossibility of sending Chinese characters. A number system was devised and used, but it is very complicated, and a great deal of time is lost in coding and decoding the messages.

The most serious drawback to the system of numbers is that international telegraph regulations forbid the sending of figures at the deferred telegram half rates. Telegrams in all other languages may be sent to or from China at deferred rates, but Chinese are barred from sending their own language this way.

The phonetic system devised by Dr. Wang's commission eliminates this difficulty, as well as doing away with coding and decoding. It will go into effect January 1, 1929, the letter said.

BANK IS RAIDED

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Two unmasked men, each with two revolvers, held up the bank of St. Francis, Ark., just below the Missouri line, at 10:30 a. m., today, forced cashier O. L. Dalton to lie on the floor and escaped with about $2,000 which was nearly all the cash on hand.

Young Mountaineer Executed in Georgia

Milledgeville, Ga., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Clifford Thompson, 22-year-old Tennessee mountaineer, was executed at the state prison farm at 2:10 p. m. today for the murder of a Chatsworth, Ga., storekeeper after Gov. Hardman had declined to grant a reprieve based on a statement made by the condemned man's wife proclaiming his innocence and implicating herself and another man.

He was followed to the death chamber by James Hugh Moss, a negro convicted with him of the crime.

The negro went to the chair as calmly as Thompson had done. The executions went forward after Gov. Hardman delayed them long enough to satisfy himself that Mr. Thompson's "confession" did not warrant further interference with the sentences.

We have some beautiful new samples of stationery which will be pleasing to women of discriminating taste. Come in and see them. B. F. Shaw Printing Co.

KNOTHOLE NEWS

VOL. 3. AUGUST 4, 1928. No. 29

It may seem durn silly to talk about "coal" these hot days but we haven't seen the winter yet when there wasn't a coal shortage of some kind and folks going a-beggin' for coal.

That's why we say buy your coal NOW while our prices are lowest and service the best.

We wonder why the manufacturers of Celotex, that wonderful material for lining attics, garages, poultry houses, etc. don't make straw hats from it. We'll bet it would make the coldest kind of a hat a fellow could wear these hot days.

Ralph (Brownie) Saltzman is building a new residence on the north side. Mule Hide shingles are being used on the roof.

Do you remember way back when balloon sleeves were in style and it took eight yards of 22-inch silk for a 36 size lady's waist.

Did you know that wood is stronger pound for pound than any other material. That's why it endures throughout the ages. That's why it pays to build your home of wood when you build.

Friend asked us the other day why do we have to advertise, everybody in Dixon knows you. That may be true but we look at advertising much like Henry Ford looks at it. Ford is the best known man in the world yet he spent eight million dollars last year to keep the public from forgetting him.

Doctor: "I'm sorry, but I can't cure your husband's talking in his sleep."

Wife: "Can't you give him something to make him talk more distinctly?"

Another bunch of mail order catalogs have come to town again. Let 'em come. As far as we're concerned we can meet any price these mail order fellows advertise—quality for quality, dollar for dollar.

Cherish your credit as you do your health, happiness and other priceless things. We do.

Motor cars of high price, such as the Rolls Royce, prize Bijur centralized chassis lubrication as an invaluable feature.

Nash, at moderate price, has it as standard equipment on all "400" Advanced Six Models.

Bijur operation is simplicity itself—and it is invariably efficient regardless of changes in temperature.

There's a lever conveniently placed for your left toe at the floor board.

Simply depress it once and 21 points

Bother and expense of service station lubrication are eliminated.

Wear at vital chassis points is avoided.

Annoying squeaks and groans are stopped before they start.

Who's Who in Dogdom—No. 16

It Took Setter 300 Years To Develop Red Hair

It took the Irish Setter at least three hundred years to develop a coat of all-red hair.

With the help of painstaking breeders, who looked upon their original white patches with horror, the breed as early as the eighteenth century could point with pride to a few red-haired members of the family.

It is a peculiar fact that although primarily a gun dog, and therefore to be prized for utility, Irish Setters have been bred for color above almost everything else.

Many early champions of the breed, however, were white-marked. Some breeders, after experience with both, are inclined to believe that a white-marked Setter, all else being equal, is often more typical than the dog in which too much has been sacrificed to color.

In judging an Irish Setter the first consideration should be his suitability in build and general appearance for the work he is expected to do. The standard of points call for a long, lean head. This does not mean a collie type, however. There should be plenty of brain room.

It is generally conceded that a medium sized Setter is the best for all purposes. The very small dog, although perhaps not a good hunter, is not a good show dog usually and the ultra large type is seldom perfectly proportioned.

In character the Irish Setter is more excitable than the English, but they are hardy gun dogs, and lovable companions.

SMITH OPPOSED TO SEAWAY PLAN SAYS GOV. ZIMMERMAN. Farmers of Middle West Need Waterway—Hoover Is For It

Washington, Aug. 4.—Election of Herbert Hoover is necessary to insure completion of the seaway plan looking toward construction of the Saint Lawrence seaway, because Governor Smith is a bitter foe of the plan, Wisconsin declares in a statement Governor Fred R. Zimmerman of Wisconsin declares in a statement printed in the Christian Science Monitor.

In the face of Mr. Hoover's continuous effort to advance the project from one stage to another, the Democratic candidate for president consistently has opposed it. The last time he did so was in his annual message to the New York legislature in which he favored the route across New York which would cost much more than the Saint Lawrence, be longer and of very doubtful value.

"If the northwest wants a waterway, it doesn't want Smith, and I cannot imagine farmers in Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa or Minnesota supporting Smith in view of the fact that they are aware that Hoover and not Smith is the man to whom they can look for the relief which would be made available by the construction of such a waterway," the Wisconsin governor said.

LOVE FOR TWO

1928 By RUTH DEWEY GROVES © NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED. BERTIE LOU WARD married ROD DRYER, who had previously been engaged to LILA MARSH. The latter amuses herself by telling her friends that she was Rod's first love, and continues to make her miserable for the bride until she meets a rich Mr. LOREE and marries him. Then she asks Bertie Lou to forgive the past.

Trying to keep up socially with wealthy friends, Bertie Lou plunges the Dryers in debt and Rod becomes depressed. Lila seizes her chance to persuade him to accept a higher salary from Loree.

Shortly after, she asks Rod to put some jewels in the safe during her husband's absence. The jewels disappear, and Rod wants to notify the police but Lila insists that they keep the matter secret, pointing out that suspicion against him might spoil his career.

Bertie Lou returns on the eve of their first anniversary to find Rod apparently indifferent. Each expects the other to make advances.

Rod goes to the Lorees without her, and Bertie Lou goes out with MARCO PALER, a rich man. Coming home, Marco kisses her unexpectedly at the door and Rod tells her she is a divorcee and she counters with the same offer to him.

He finally agrees to make a go of it, but Rod cuts down on extravagance and Bertie Lou thinks he is spending the money on a girl who is out more and more with Marco.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY. CHAPTER XXXII. BERTIE LOU had left her room door open. On the bed was the half-filled suitcase into which she was throwing silken garments and toilet articles indiscriminately.

Rod was struck by her hasty carelessness. Bertie Lou had always been fastidiously neat. Now he saw with surprise that her room was disordered and untidy.

He could not understand it. The rest of the apartment was as clean and orderly as ever. Bertie Lou could have told him of aching weariness and tired flesh that rebelled under the lash of a prideful spirit; of mopping up floors at odd hours, while her head ached splittingly and her fingers trembled over the mop rag.

She could have told him of a complete lack of strength to carry her industry into her own room. The first time she failed to move the bed and sweep under it she felt guilty. Next it was the dresser that was left undisturbed. Presently only the places that showed were swept and dusted. And, finally, any hour of the day or night would have found the foot of the bed and the two chairs decorated with a garment or two.

Bertie Lou used her room almost exclusively for changing her clothes. Now and then she snatched a few fitful hours of sleep—just barely enough to keep her going. Her splendid young constitution carried her through, though anyone who loved her would have been pained to see the hollow cheeks and the feverish restlessness of her eyes. They seemed fairly to glitter.

She looked up and saw Rod's gaze bent questioning upon her. "Hello," she said, and negligently tossed a pair of painted slippers into a suitcase. "You're home early."

Rod indicated her packing with a gesture. "Planning another trip home?" he asked, striving to speak casually. Bertie Lou rolled up a negligee and threw it on top of the slippers before answering.

"Nope; just a little squall out at the Palmer place," she said jauntily. "Got anything interesting on for your own week-end?" she added conversationally.

"The Lorees have asked me up to The Birchies," Rod replied stiffly. Bertie Lou glanced over her shoulder. "Going?" she asked indifferently.

"I haven't decided," Rod answered. "You don't happen to know if the tailor returned my dress suit, do you?"

"I hung it in your closet," Bertie Lou said pleasantly. "Would you like a gardenia? I've some beauties. They're in the refrigerator keeping fresh."

"Thanks," Rod returned, and went about his dressing.

WHEN Bertie Lou left she placed a lovely white bloom on the stand in the tiny entrance hall. Rod was putting on his collar and tie in the bathroom—the only dressing room he had. On the flower Bertie Lou had laid a kiss as lightly as a butterfly might rest on the waxy petals, but far more lingeringly.

Rod overlooked the flower. His own departure was made in haste. Of all the infernal places to lose a collar button, under a bathtub on legs was the worst! He'd very nearly called to Bertie Lou to help him dig it out. But she was dressed too. Down he went on his hands and knees and got dirt on his cuff reaching under the tub. That necessitated a change.

And Lila, he knew, would not be pleased if he were late. She was giving a dinner to an important man, a foreign banker whom Cyrus was desirous of honoring.

Rod barely arrived ahead of the guest of honor. Lila was inclined to be peevish because he hadn't come early, but she had little chance to scold. And Rod's frank admiration appeared her.

Lila had done her best. Her hair was bound with a jeweled fillet and in such a way as to make her bob look like a stately coiffeur. And her complexion was perfectly dazzling. She had used a lavender powder which turned her skin to a marvelous tone under the artificial light. Her full, round lips budded like a scarlet flower beneath the stars in her eyes. Stars that were lighted for Rod.

Cyrus had presented her with some new jewels. But Rod noticed that she was wearing the copes of those that had been stolen, as well. A superb sapphire and diamond ornament hung on a slender chain around her neck and reposed on the blue-veined whiteness of her breast.

Having decided that a man of the world such as Cyrus described Monsieur Clavier to be would appreciate an original French gown, Lila had bought the lowest cut one she could find. Unfortunately, while Monsieur recognized it as French, he smiled inwardly at the naivete of the American woman of good society who buys dresses designed for the French demi-monde.

But he allowed no hint of his amusement to show in his manner. Lila accepted with glancing at Rod over Monsieur's bowed head to call his attention to the Frenchman's courtly manner. She hoped Rod would see that she liked it. He did, and scowled.

However, Lila made him happy very shortly. She must go in to dinner with Monsieur Clavier but she put Rod on her other side. And she graciously gave him as much attention as her guest of honor received.

It was not kindness that prompted her to do this. She really did not know that if another man had sat in the seat she gave him he'd have burned with jealousy, and that it was exquisite torture to him to be near her.

SHE wanted him close to please herself. Though at times she fairly hated him because he wouldn't see, or admit that he saw—she did not know which way it was—that she was inviting him to make love to her.

He was offering more resistance than she had expected. At times she told herself that he could not be won. But she would not give up. Bringing Rod to her feet had become an obsession. She had developed a rancorous hatred of Bertie Lou—a hatred that drove her on.

To let Rod go without his having declared his passion would be to hand the victor's crown to a girl who despised her. That Bertie Lou did despise her she knew by the way Rod was permitted to go his own way without interference. It was as though Bertie Lou had said to her: "If he wants you I don't want him; but let's see you get him."

It would have saved her pride considerably if Rod had told her how hard he tried to keep away from her; how many times he swore never to see her again, but how he was always lured back to feast his eyes on her dazzling beauty, staking his honor on his power to resist his desire for her, to keep himself in hand and bear his longing in silence.

But tonight, he realized, with sudden understanding of his own limitations, it was going to be harder than ever to keep from showing his true feelings. Lila was a bright light, a warm light, and Rod felt himself succumbing to a mothlike weakness. Outside of her radiance life was a void.

Lila detected a change in him when she turned quickly from an animated conversation with Monsieur Clavier and caught Rod's gaze unmasked. She lifted a glass of wine and smiled at him over glass. Rod politely lifted his own glass but his hand trembled so that a few drops of champagne were spilled. He did not smile back at Lila, because he had seen complete understanding of his emotions in her expression.

Looks are often more revealing than words. Rod read submission in the look Lila gave him over her glass. He knew that everything he had not said had been telegraphed to her in an instant. And her answer, returned to him in a flash, had set his blood on fire.

But before he drained his glass and put it down he had extinguished the flame of passion in the cold water of enunciation.

Her husband's voice—jolly old Cy—telling a Scotch joke—carried down to him. Rod looked at him, quaffed off the remainder of his wine and mentally gave Lila up even before she turned back to Monsieur Clavier, who was saying something that Rod did not quite grasp at first.

NEITHER did Lila, so concentrated were her thoughts upon the triumph she believed was hers. Monsieur repeated it. "I was wondering what connoisseur had matched those pearls so perfectly to your complexion, madam," he said.

Rod expected Lila to smile. Instead, a look of uneasiness spread over her countenance. "These are nothing, Monsieur," she said after

What Averages of Leagues Show

IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

New York, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby of Boston remains more or less safely in the vanguard of the batters in the National League, and Larry Benton of New York is supreme among the pitchers but almost all of the other individual honors fall upon the able shoulders of various members of the Cardinal array. The St. Louis monopoly in other departments is broken only in home runs where Hack Wilson of Chicago leads with 24 and in stolen bases where Wilson's team-mate Kiki Cuyler, sets the pace with 19.

Hornsby's average according to figures issued today and including games of last Wednesday, is .386 for 87 contests. Paul Waner, the poisonous Pirate, shows an even .370 for 95 games.

Other leading batsmen are: Gratham, Pittsburgh, .360; Sisler, Boston, .354; Bottomley, St. Louis, .451; Lindstrom, New York, .349; Douthitt, St. Louis, .346; Herman, Brooklyn, .342; Roettger, St. Louis, .341; and Hafez, St. Louis, .334.

Jim Bottomley of St. Louis tops the league in runs scored, with 88; in doubles with 35; in triples with 13, and in runs batted in with 92. Taylor Douthitt has 146 hits, the greatest total of any National League player. At this point, Chicago steps in for the few honors the Cardinals have overlooked.

Larry Benton added another pitching victory to his string to make his total for the season seventeen against only four defeats.

Second to Benton stands the familiar figure of Red Lucas of Cincinnati. Red has won ten and lost three.

The Pirates continue to set the pace in club batting, this time with .305, but the Cardinals remain tough opponents. The St. Louis entry now is second with .302.

IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

Chicago, Aug. 4.—(AP)—The Yankees may lose baseball games but "Murderers Row" seems to get tougher and tougher. While Miller Huggins and his men suffered the worse week of their season last week, their bats were more active than ever, unofficial averages for the week up to and including Wednesday's games reveal.

As they dropped four of their eight games, the Yankees averaged .321 as a team in batting, averaged almost eight runs a game and their hits totalled 147 bases.

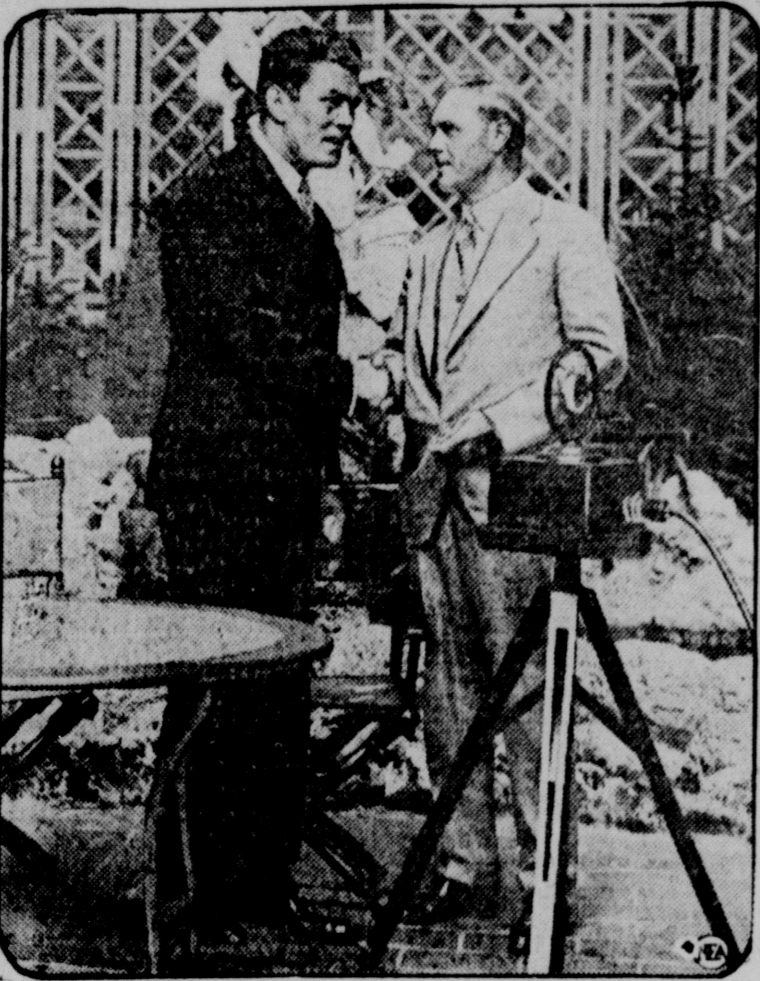

But it was a Senator, "Goose" Goslin, who topped the individual batting race. The "Goose" increased his average from .392 to .399 during the week and was 26 percentage points ahead of his nearest rival, Al Simmons of Philadelphia, whose average declined five points.

The ten leaders and their averages: Goslin, Washington, .399; Simmons, Philadelphia, .373; Gehrig, New York, .359; Lazzeri, New York, .358; Fox, Philadelphia, .354; Manush, St. Louis, .351; E. Miller, Philadelphia, .341; Bettencourt, St. Louis, .340; Ruth, New York, .337; and Myer, Boston, .333.

While New York increased its team batting by two points to hold the lead in that department, Cleveland increased its hitting mark eight points and was only five points from second place, which is held by Philadelphia.

So said Champion Gene Tunney when he announced his permanent retirement from the ring, and here he is shaking hands with Rickard after the farewell luncheon in New York. "Good luck, Gene," said the man who had lost on the gate receipts. "And better luck to you, Tex," responded the youngster who was quitting with some $2,000,000 salted away.

Watching the Big Scoreboard

BY HERBERT W. BARKER

Associated Press Sports Writer
John McGraw's teams in the National League long have been noted for their bulldog courage and the Giants of 1928 are no exception. Some critics have rated all four western clubs as potentially stronger than the clan of McGraw but the standing shows the Giants in second place nonetheless and still within striking distance of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Many of the game McGraw's hirelings have pulled out of the fire this season and they did the same thing at the expense of the Cincinnati Reds yesterday, 7 to 5. Trailing by 4 to 1 in the eighth inning yesterday the Giants took a one-run lead by scoring four runs, Frank Hogan's homer being the decisive blow.

The Chicago Cubs moved into third place by taking over the Brooklyn Dodgers, 8 to 5, a seven run rally in the third settling the issue.

The Pittsburgh Pirates tightened their hold on fifth place by crushing the Phillies again, 14 to 6. Pie Traynor got three singles and a pair of doubles in six chances.

The Cards lost no ground for Sherdel held the Boston Braves to five hits and beat them, 5 to 1.

The American League race remained in status quo as the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics both lost.

The Yanks were shut out by Sam Gray and the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 0. Gray held the champions to five hits and for the second day in a row Babe Ruth went hitless.

The Cleveland Indians snapped the A's winning streak of ten straight games by pounding Rube Walberg into submission, 9 to 5.

Billings and Vangilder walked five men in succession in the seventh inning at Detroit and the Tigers bowed to the Washington Senators, 9 to 3, in the final game of the series.

The Chicago White Sox six game winning streak foundered on the rock of Ed Morris' pitching prowess, the Boston Red Sox scoring a 3 to 1 triumph over Al Thomas.
